SOCIAL JUSTICE
ACTIVISTS & VALUES

Valeria Bravo Garcia
Fellow
Women Resource Center
WHAT ARE MY VALUES?

At the heart of my passion, these are the values that you would find:

Justice
Sustainability
Love
WHAT MOTIVATES ME? WHAT MOVES ME?

- My family
- My community
- My country
- My the history of my ancestors
LOLITA LEBRON: JUSTICE

She was a revolutionary advocate for Puerto Rican independence who served a quarter century in a US prison. Lolita was also a major poet of the Americas, and was awarded for "the unparalleled cosmic richness of her poetry and her profound love for her country."

In 1952, after Puerto Rico's official status was changed to "Commonwealth", the Nationalist Party began a series of revolutionary actions, including the Jayuya Uprising. Lolita became the leader of a group of nationalists who proceeded to attack the U.S. House of Representatives in 1954.
SANDRA VIVIANA CUÉLLAR GALLEGO: SUSTAINABILITY

She was a Colombian environmental engineer who worked on water and basin protection, as well as wetland issues.

Her work involved advocating for the equal participation of local communities in the environmental decisions that affect them. She disappeared in Cali in 2011 and remains missing. The government has not provided any updated information regarding the investigation into her disappearance and it remains in impunity.
KENYA CUEVAS: LOVE

Trans Rights Activist, founder of Casa de las Muñecas and advocate for Sex Workers.

After years of struggle, she managed to make the murder of her partner, Paola Buenrostro, the first case recognized as a transfeminicide by the CDHDF IN 2019.

La Casa de las Munecas seeks to assert the rights of sex workers, homeless people, drug users, people living with HIV, people deprived from their different liberties, regardless of sexual orientation, identity, or expression of gender. In it, trans women are advised on access to official identity documents, access to health services and support is provided to victims of hate crimes.